RIFLE FOUND IN A STRAW STACK

Authorities Believe Weapon is One
With Which Joseph Clevenger
Was Shot Last Saturday.

IS NOT SHOWN TO THE NEGRO

Result of Discovery Causes Belief it
Was "Planted" or Was Hidden
There by John Lee.

The rifle believed to be the one from which the shot was fired that killed Joseph Clevenger was found this morning near a straw stack on the C. W. (Burney), Anderson farm south of the city. The finding of the rifle complicates the murder mystery more than ever and it is as far from solution as it was last Saturday morning when Clevenger was found dead in a lane near his home with a bullet wound in his chest.

The officers are not making any great headway on the case. The finding of the rifle created a stir in police circles but as yet the negro has never been asked to identify the gun. Coroner Barnett intended coming here this afternoon and again go over some of the evidence. The rifle found on the Anderson farm is a .22 calibre gun and is a repeater corresponding to the one alleged to have been carried by the negro, Lee.

The rifle was found at a straw stack near the Big Four early this morning by a farm hand. The gun was found lying under a cow and when the farm hand went there to drive the cow to the house the rifle was discovered. It was rusty but not as much so as would be supposed had it been there since last Saturday. The finding of the rifle places the officials between two stories and either is very likely.

It will be recalled that Lee, the colored man, in his first story of his activity following the shooting of Clevenger, stated that he went south along the railway and that he left the rifle in the hands of his two assailants following the firing of the shot. If the negro hid the gun at the straw stack, then he told the police a lie and his story does not look very good.

On the other hand the rifle could have been "planted" at the straw stack by some of Butt's friends in order to discredit the negro and make things look favorable for Butts. Henry Butts, a brother of Luther Butts, worked at the Anderson farm until about a week ago, according to information received today. This may be taken to mean something by the police. The rifle did not have a heavy coat of rust as would be supposed if the negro had left it there last Saturday or even Sunday. The finding of the rifle only tends to complicate the entire affair and the officers seem to be up against it for a solution of the alleged crime!

The rifle has not been shown to the negro and it is not known for sure whether it is the one or not, but the place in which it was found would indicate that it was the one. Deputy Sheriff Sullivan went to the Anderson farm this morning and returned with the rifle. It is now in possession of the prosecutor.

Nothing new was learned yesterday afternoon at the second questioning of Mrs. Clevenger, widow of Joe. In the main Mrs. Clevenger held to her first story regarding the events on last Friday night and Saturday morning. She refused to substantiate the story told by Lee regarding the departure of Clevenger and the negro from the house. It was here that their two stories dif-

TWO INJURED IN RUNAWAY MISHAP

Claire Smith and His Aunt, Mrs.
Mollie Atkinson, of Indianapolis
Hurt While on Way Home

HORSE SCARES AT ROCK PILE

Claire Smith, living on the Owen L. Carr farm west of the city, and his aunt, Mrs. Mollie Atkinson, of Indianapolis, were injured Wednesday evening while enroute home when the horse became frightened and made a wild dash to the side of the road. The buggy was upset, rolling down the grade just west of the bridge over Hodges branch. Mrs. Atkinson was hurt the worst of the two sustaining a badly bruised shoulder.

The horse frightened at a pile of rock in the road and in the dash to the side the buggy rolled down the embankment. The embankment at this point in the road is very steep and the occupants of the buggy were fortunate in escaping more serious injury. The accident occurred shortly after six o'clock.

POSTOFFICE NOT TO SELL WAR STAMPS

Not a Part of Postoffice Department's Duty—Letters Being Mailed With Them Already.

MORE CONFUSION EXPECTED

Many requests have been received at the postoffice here for "war tax" stamps, which caused the announcement today from the postoffice that they would not be handled at the postoffice at all. The impression was broadcast in Rushville as well as in many other cities that revenue stamps could most likely be purchased at the postoffice, but the postoffice authorities point out that their department is entirely separate and distinct from the treasury department which is in charge of the enforcement of the special revenue law. It is not compulsory for any agency to sell "war tax" stamps except the internal revenue collector and his deputies. For convenience sake some banks and retail establishments have bought a supply of stamps and are selling them.

The confusion with postage stamps of "war tax" stamps, which was expected by the postal authorities, is already evident here. Some letters have been received at the postoffice here since the new stamps were issued. The fact was emphasized at the postoffice that when they sell a stamp, the buyer gets his money's worth. Every spring and fall, the postoffice employees say, when people are cleaning house, letters are mailed with old Spanish war tax stamps which have been dug up.

SONGS REVIVE OLD MEMORIES

Concert at Christian Church Entertains Large Crowd With Familiar Melodies.

RECEIPTS AMOUNT TO $78.10

Half Will go to Belgian Relief Fund and Other Half to Good Fellows* League.

The Old Time Melodies concert at the Main Street Christian church last night realized $78.10 and was appreciated by a good-sized audience. The crowd was exceptionally large considering the many counter attractions last night.

The sum made off the concert is all absolutely clear. The use of the church was donated, all of those who helped to make the event a success contributed their services and the programs and tickets were printed by the Daily Republican.

One-half of the amount will be applied to the Belgian relief fund, as was announced previously, and one-half to the Good Fellows League, which will work this year as it has in former years to see that the needy little folks of Rushville have a happy Christmas. This will bring the Belgian relief fund up to approximately one hundred and eighty-five barrels. Fifteen more barrels are necessary to reach the mark set for the fund—two hundred barrels. If any one wishes to come forward with the fifteen barrels between now and December 10, by which time the flour will be made, it will be most kindly accepted.

The concert was a very informal affair and every number won the hearty applause of the audience. There were some unexpected surprises as well as one disappointment. The happiest surprise—meaning one that was not on the program—were the readings by Miss Francis Frazee. The disappointment was the fact that the Wi-Hub club could not sing because Dr. F. R. McClannahan was unexpectedly called away.

The crowd proved that it is the old melodies that are loved best. The program opened with the fine old song, "Love's Old Sweet Song," sung by Miss Helen Scott. Mrs. D. H. Dean was the accompanist. The audience was insistent but Miss Scott refused an encore.

They followed two violin numbers by Miss Leona Thomas, the talented violinist with whom Rushville people are familiar. She played "Traumerei" and "Shubert's Serenade" with the grace that has characterized her work since she first appeared on any program.

The singing of the sweet song, "Annie Laurie," by the mixed quartet, was one of the high marks on the program. The audience was attracted not only by the musical merit of the song but by its associations. The wonderful molding of the melody into one sweet, vibrant tone by the quartet was remarkably done. Miss Martha Hogsett, Mrs. C. M. Yocum, Jess Pugh and B. F. Miller sang in the quartet. Mrs. Jess Pugh was their accompanist.

Miss Norma Smith literally "brought down the house" with the Riley selection, "Little Orphan Annie" she reading the poem to her own accompaniment on the piano. The audience knew the resourcefulness of Miss Smith and demanded another. She responded with a selection that was equally as delightful.

B. F. Miller sang "I Hear You Calling Me" with wonderful feeling

TEN COUNTIES REPRESENTED

Rush County Odd Fellows Meeting
Yesterday One of Most Successful Held in Rushville.

PEOPLE FROM 21 TOWNS HERE

Two Hundred and Sixty-Five Sit Down to Banquet, First Ever Held in New Hall.

Probably the most enjoyable as well as the best attended meeting in the history of Odd Fellowship in Rush county was that held in the Odd Fellows hall here yesterday afternoon and last night. The occasion was the annual meeting of the Odd Fellows lodges of the county. Twenty-one different lodges were represented at the meeting, showing the wide scope of the gathering and the interest that was taken in it. There was degree work in the afternoon and at night, and a banquet was served between the hours of six and eight o'clock.

The initiatory degree was conferred on a class of seven candidates during the afternoon by the degree team of the Milroy lodge. At night there were eight candidates for the first degree, the work being given by the degree team of Franklin lodge of this city.

While all the initiating was going on, the new dining room of Franklin lodge was also initiated. It was the first time a banquet has ever been served in the magnificent dining hall which has just been fitted up on the third floor of the building adjoining the Odd Fellows building. More than a hundred persons can be seated at one time in the room. There were two hundred and sixty-five served last night between six and eight o'clock at three sittings.

There were three hundred and fifty people present for the evening's program following the banquet. Following the degree work there were a number of impromptu speeches, including those from J. T. Arbuckle, recently elected grand master, and Edwin Farrer, of Indianapolis, formerly of this city and at one time grand master of the Odd Fellows lodge in Indiana.

There were Odd Fellows present from Union, Fayette, Decatur, Franklin, Shelby, Hancock, Henry, Jennings, Jackson and Rush counties. The Odd Fellows orchestra played at both the afternoon and evening sessions.

ROBBERS CRACK P.O. SAFE

Take $1,500 in Stamps But Leave

(By United Press.)

Upland, Ind., Dec. 3.—Robbers cracked the postoffice safe here early today and took $1,500 in stamps that had arrived only yesterday. They left untouched large amounts of money in the vaults and did not try to break into the inner vaults. Three men who are believed to have composed the party were last seen going toward Gas City.

QUARANTINE IS RAISED TODAY

Six Farms Where Epidemic of Foot and Mouth Disease Was Feared
Are From Under Ban.

NO SYMPTOMS ARE FOUND

The quarantine of the six farms in Rush county, caused by the use of hog cholera serum alleged to have been defective and through which cases of the foot and mouth disease were traced, was raised today by Dr. A. A. Mull, deputy state veterinarian. Dr. Mull visited all the farms today and looked over the herds of hogs under question and found no symptoms of the foot and mouth disease and notified the land owners that they would be free to come and go as they pleased.

It was stated that if any of the hogs were going to have the disease the symptoms would have developed before now and it is considered that the danger has passed. The farms under quarantine were those of P. S. Daubenspeck, Jesse Bennett, Jesse Walls, Jesse Shelton, Power and Jay and Alva Bitner.

THIS WAS LAST DAY TO FILE STATEMENTS

Likely Several Candidates Did Not Get in, But Progressive Committee Was Just in Time.

IT STILL HAS SOME COMING

Several candidates at the last election waited until the last minute to file their statements of expenses with the county clerk. Today was the last day and it is highly probable that several candidates did not get in with their statements. Those that did not file their statements, regardless of whether they were elected, are subject to a fine if anyone desired to push the charge. It is believed, however, that the number failing to comply with the law was very small.

Dan Kinney, treasurer of the Progressive central committee, in his statement shows that $289.25 was taken in and that $249.31 was spent. The money was spent for printing and hotel bills for the speakers. A. J. Beveridge cost them $5 for room and meals. Mr. Kinney kept a list of those who promised contributions and did not pay. There were fifteen men owing a total of $21 in his list.

A parent-teachers meeting will be held at Washington school tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock. There will be a short program by the children and all those interested in the progress of the school are urged to be present.

BIG DAMAGE SUIT OPENS IN COURT

Charles H. Widman Asks $5,000 of
L. E. & W. For Injuries Sustained at Grade Crossing.

VENUE FROM FAYETTE COUNTY

Automobile went "Dead" on Track and he Attempted to Push it Off Before Train Came.

The damage suit of Charles H. Widman against the Lake Erie and Western and the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railways, started this morning in the circuit court. The case was sent here on a change of venue from Fayette county and the plaintiff demands $5,000 for injuries received in a grade crossing accident. A jury was secured and the opening statements made before the noon hour and the first testimony was introduced this afternoon.

The plaintiff received his injuries in a peculiar manner. He alleges that on Sept. 14, 1912, he was driving his automobile in Eleventh street in the city of Connersville and that as he approached the crossing of the defendant railroads he saw a train approaching at a distance of 1,200 feet. Believing that he had plenty of time to get across he started but due to loose gravel about the crossing approach the machine went "dead."

The complaint states that Widman got out of the machine and attempted to back it off the track by pushing but before he could do so the train struck it. He was injured when the machine was hit. He claims that the train was running faster than the limit specified by a city ordinance then in force. The machine was completely wrecked and Widman claims to have been caught under the wreckage. It is alleged that if the train had been running according to the ordinance he would have had time to get the machine off the tracks.

He alleges negligence on the part of the railroad companies and claims to have been permanently hurt. The case has been in court a long time. Little difficulty was had in securing a jury as most of the men were not acquainted with the case. Both railroads use the same track, or did use the same track, and for this reason are made joint defendants.

The jury trying the case is as follows: Robert Kennedy, Robert H. Newkirk, Guy Bussell, John Wallace, William Schenck, Ira B. Hite, Charles L. Newhouse, David C. Compton, B. F. Jones, Sabert S. Offutt, Charles Sefton and George Alexander.

The aliens who were arrested and are held under guard because of their failure to register as required tried to rush one of the gates of the camp. The outbreak was speedily quelled.

HAS EFFECT ON TURKEY MARKET

Erroneous Impression About Foot and Mouth Disease Harmful Agriculture Department Says.

IT MAKES PRICES HIGHER

To Save Money to Turkey Growing States of Indiana Warning is Given About Quarantine.

Washington, Dec. 3.—An entirely erroneous impression that the Federal Government, in quarantining for the foot-and-mouth disease, has prevented the shipment of dressed poultry into or out of quarantined states has had a very serious effect on the turkey industry of the United States, according to the poultry specialists of the Department of Agriculture. Studies of the Thanksgiving turkey markets in New York, Boston and Philadelphia indicated that turkeys were somewhat scarce, and as a result prices ruled high on a very firm market. All that saved a great scarcity was the fact that there were a quantity of turkeys in excellent condition held over in cold storage from last December. This somewhat relieved the pressure.

The reason for the scarcity, the specialists find, is that the farm buyers of turkeys, under the impression that New York State or other States had quarantined against dressed poultry, were afraid to offer prices for live turkeys which the farmers would accept. In other cases city wholesalers offered low prices because of a fear that the district in which they were selling might quarantine against turkeys from certain territories and make it impossible for them to dispose of their turkeys after being dressed. Consequently, many farmers refused to sell their birds at the prices offered, and the result is heavy holding on the farms. As there are only two turkey days, Thanksgiving and Christmas, the farm flocks must this month be realized on, unless they are to be held over. The hesitation of the buyers has been increased, owing to the fact that the express and railroad companies also are misinformed as to the quarantine, and in many cases have refused to accept dressed poultry for shipment to New York. In some cases, one line would accept poultry and others would not, and in many cases railroads would accept poultry for shipment to Philadelphia but not to New York.

The Department of Agriculture, wishing to save farmers in the important turkey growing States of Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Texas, Indiana and Illinois, reiterates its previous announcement that there is no Federal quarantine or restriction on shipping dressed turkeys or other poultry from uninfected farms in quarantined States, and absolutely no Federal restriction as to shipment of dressed poultry into quarantined States. The Federal authorities are, of course, opposed to the movement of any produce from a farm which is quarantined because of the actual presence on the farm of the foot-and-mouth disease.

In all these cases, however, the State authorities, in addition to the general county and Federal quarantines, put a rigid quarantine around the actually infected farms. The misunderstanding as to New York State's attitude toward receiving dressed poultry is due to the fact that the order was at first issued by the State authorities prohibiting the entry into New York of dressed poultry from other quarantined States. This order, however, was immediately rescinded, and there is at present no State quarantine in New York against the shipment of dressed poultry into the State.

Apparently the Kentucky officials have quarantined against the shipment of dressed poultry from the infected counties in that State, but this is purely a State measure, as the Federal authorities have placed no restrictions on the shipment of dressed poultry other than from actually infected farms.

A KIDNEY REMEDY
HAPPINESS

I take pleasure in stating that I have used Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, that I was greatly benefited by the same and have used it in my family. I had a son, when quite young he suffered from bladder or kidney affliction. I called in my physician, he attended him but did him no good. Almost by accident I noticed an advertisement about the curative properties of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. I procured a bottle and gave it to him according to directions. It cured him of what we thought was almost impossible and the same with others of my family. I have such strong faith in Swamp-Root that I have never done without it in my family since the wonderful cure of my son as well as myself. I recommend it to all who suffer from kidney or bladder troubles and I am led to believe that it is one of the best medicines for the purpose for which it is used, that has ever been discovered.

This is my experience from the use of Swamp-Root. Wishing the promoters of this wonderful medicine a large sale to the suffering public, I am,

Town Harmony

Concerning a matter which is at present interesting Rushville the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette says: "One of the great problems which every movement for civic advance has to meet, is that of lining up all elements for team work. Harmonious co-operation of all interests is necessary.

A great many communities are cursed by petty jealousies. Their power for mischief affects every public enterprise. If one man starts a movement, all the people who do not like him begin to throw cold water. They make sarcastic remarks about his project. The result is that people feel disinclined to take hold and push, for fear lest they make themselves ridiculous.

It is difficult to promote public objects under the most favorable conditions. The moment that people let personal feeling enter in, it becomes impossible to get unity of action. One set of people will try one thing, only to see it fall under a wet blanket of ironical skepticism. They feel disgusted, and the next time anyone else starts anything, they in turn stand back and jeer.

The practical outcome is that everyone feels afraid of starting any new movement for fear of becoming ridiculous. It is easier to stand on one side and make superior remarks about the poor judgment of your neighbors than to take hold and push. Civic sentiment dissipates, and the town growth languishes.

How to Use Seals

Red Cross Seals should, in accordance with Order No. 5,020 of the Post-office Department "be affixed to the reverse side of domestic mail matter," and not on the address side of any letters or packages that are going through the mail. They may be placed anywhere on matter going by express. As many seals may be used on the back of a letter or package as may be desired. Care should be exercised in sending merchandise through the mails not to place seals over the strings with which the package is tied, since this seals the package against inspection and subjects it to first class postage rates. Users of Red Cross Seals are cautioned against their indiscriminating use on foreign mail. Red Cross Seals in normal times may be used on the reverse side of mail matter sent to Austria, Germany, Great Britain and most of the British colonies, except India and Australia, Guatemala, Uruguay, and Portugal refuse to admit mail bearing non-postage stamps. Certain European countries will return to the sender any mail bearing Red Cross Seals on the address side. Mail addressed to any of the belligerent countries in Europe should not bear the Red Cross Seal. Red Cross Seals may be used on the face of checks, or bills, on legal documents and on any commercial paper. These Christmas Seals are not good for postage. They will not carry any mail matter, but any kind of mail matter will carry them."

Here's Where The Fun Comes In

Here's Fun

On Christmas Eve little Dorothy, possessed of the whooping cough, was doing some fancy whooping for company that had come.

"Dorothy, dear" the mother said, "you must stop coughing or Santa Claus won't come. If he hears you coughing he'll be afraid to come in."

"I should worry," Dorothy replied, showing full familiarity with modern expression, "He's got tuberculosis himself."

"Tuberculosis! Who told you Santa Claus had tuberculosis?"

"Oh, everybody knows that. Don't you buy tuberculosis stamps for him every Christmas?"

Penn Approved Beer
as Temperance Drink

William Penn recognized the food and temperance value of beer as early as 1663, when he built a brewery in Pennsylvania.

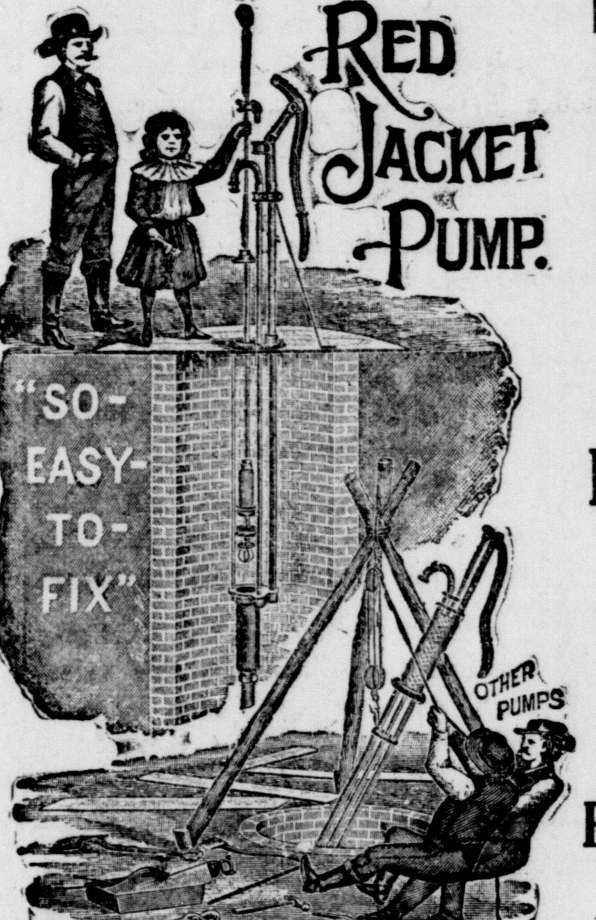

He encouraged his followers to use the light malt beverage instead of strong alcoholic drinks.

Always charitable, even in thought, Penn and his people who had sought religious freedom in the wilderness, did not endeavor to enforce their beliefs upon their neighbors.

The influence of the early colonists still lives. Pennsylvania has to this day steadfastly refused to adopt prohibition in any form.

Corns Quit, Pains Stop, With "Gets-It"

Quit Plasters, Salves and What-Nots.

After using "GETS-IT" once you will never again have occasion for asking, "What can I do to get rid of my corns?" "GETS-IT" is the first sure, certain corn-cender ever known.

Why "Suffer-Yet" With Corns? Use "GETS-IT". They'll Vanish!

If you have tried other things by the score and will now try "GETS-IT", you will realize this glorious fact. You probably are tired sticking on tape that won't stay stuck, plasters that shift themselves right onto your corn, contraptions that make a bundle of your toe and press right down on the corn. But two drops of "GETS-IT" on that corn in two seconds. The corn is then doomed as sure as night follows day. The corn shrivels. There's no pain, no fuss. If you think this sounds too good to be true try it tonight on any corn, callus, wart or bunion.

"GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago. "Gets-It" is sold in Rushville by Thos. W. Lytle, Hargrove & Mullin and F. E. Wolcott.

JUMPERS HAD GOOD AVERAGES

Former Major Leaguers Who Went to Feds all Improved at Bat Except One Man.

HARVARD LOOKS TO BE BEST

Has Been Five Long Years Since Yale Won Over Harvard—Baseball Was Not Settled.

(Written for United Press.)

BY HAL SHERIDAN.

New York, Dec. 3.—Without attempting any explanation of the why or wherefore, a comparison of the respective batting average of eight baseball players before they jumped Organized Ball and after they joined the Federals, is of interest. With one exception, the men whose names are given farther down made better records with their bats in the Federal League when they did before becoming "outlaws." The one exception is "Runt" Walsh; but here's the list:

Yerkes, with Organized Ball, batted .267; with the Feds his average was .400. Evans batted .249 with the St. Louis Nationals, and .365 with the Feds. With the Yanks and White Sox, Hal Chase batted .267, and with the Feds, .342. Against National League twirlers, Bates, formerly of Cincinnati, hit for .278; against National League mounds-men and 310 against Federal tossers. Oaks, erstwhile St. Louis National Leaguer, swatted .293 in the old league, and .316 among the Feds. Walsh's average while with the Yanks and Athletics was .307, but after the leap to the outlaws he dropped four points.

We've been asked why we haven't picked an all-American football team. We pick it now. It's Harvard. That Crimson eleven of 1914 was such a marvelous thing, so perfect in every detail, so invulnerable on defense, and so crushingly powerful an offense, when all the regulars were in, that it couldn't be bettered by the addition even of a Maulbetsch or a LeGore or anyone you might name. There undoubtedly are several men who played this year who were better as individuals than some of the Harvard regulars, but the best would not have fitted in as an efficient working part of the Crimson car as well as did the men who comprised Haughton's Hurricane.

On the other hand, if requested to name an all-star eleven, it is doubtful if more than five or six Harvard names would appear on it. We'd say, Mahan, Hardwick, Pennock, Logan and Brickley should be among those present.

It will take every bit of victory that the enormous Yale bowl will hold to quench the Bulldog's thirst when things do finally come his way. It has now been five long, parched, dusty twelve months since the Goddess of Victory has perched over the ramparts of a Blue eleven after a Harvard game. Imagine a drought of five years.

It seems a pity that Harvard turned down the offer of Illinois to

REMARKABLE CURE OF RHEUMATISM

"Dear Readers—For years I had suffered untold agonies with what was considered an incurable case of rheumatism. I had given every remedy I laid hands upon a fair trial and had doctor after doctor treat me without even receiving as much as temporary relief.

At last, the new scientific prescription, Lloyd's kidney and rheumatism tablets, came to my notice. This preparation brought immediate relief and in two weeks I was absolutely cured. The cure has remained permanent, and I am very thankful.

Sufferers—Take my advice and get a few "Lloyd's Tablets" from your druggist today and be convinced of the curative qualities of this new prescription.

Signed, Geo. W. Gearhart, 2559 Weaver St., Columbus, O.

P. S. Editor—Please insert this letter in some prominent place in your paper using my name if you wish. G. W. G."

play a post season game, the receipts to go to the relief of Belgium sufferers. True, past season football contests drag the season out pretty long, and means a great deal to the men who have played the game throughout the season. In such a case, however, Harvard could have heaped a lot more glory on herself by agreeing to the plan.

Yale undoubtedly would have donated her great bowl for the occasion, which would have meant something like $140,000 for stricken Belgium. It would have given football the biggest boost in the history of the sport, and put an end to any argument on who is King this fall on the gridiron.

Within a week now, we ought to have a pretty good idea of what to expect in the nature of peace or continued warfare between the Federals and organized baseball. The National League, the organization more directly affected than the American, is to hold its annual meeting here on December 8. At this meeting the league's attitude is to be finally settled. Carry Horrman, it is understood is desirous of patching up the difficulties to the satisfaction of all concerned.

In this respect, Friend Garry is probably the Champion Optimist of the world, past, present or future, for if you hear some of his colleagues talk there isn't a chance in the world for total satisfaction. Herman's opponents declare the Feds want too much. They are strongly in favor of following Ban Johnson's system of sitting tight. A great deal will rest with President Tener. It will be the first biggest question he has had before him since he quit governing Pennsylvania to run the National League.

GETS TEN DAYS FOR CAUSING TROUBLE

Elmer Anderson Accuses C. H. & D. Train Crew of "Splitting Rake-Off" and is Tied Up

POLICE CALLED TO STATION

Disorderly conduct on a C. H. & D. passenger train resulted in Elmer Anderson, giving his home as Charlotte, Mich., receiving ten days in jail in police court this morning. The sentence was suspended by Mayor Bebout and Anderson was permitted to go on to his home. He was arrested here last night on complaint of the brakeman and conductor of the westbound train due at 12:30 o'clock. The conductor and brakeman appeared against Anderson this morning.

Anderson boarded the train in Connersville, and according to his own story and that told by the train crew, he became disorderly and made threats against the two men. Anderson objected to paying ten cents extra for cash fare and accused the brakeman and conductor of holding him up and stated that they were going to split the money between them. Anderson said that he had been working near College Corner and that he went to Connersville yesterday. He came here intending to catch a train for his home. He stated that he had a wife and one child and that he was anxious to go home to them. He had nine dollars in money. The train crew on arriving here tied Anderson with wire and left him at the station to await the arrival of the police.

A recent effort to sell the road at auction failed. W. L. Day, federal judge, set $20,000,000 as the minimum purchase price.

Jailbird.

The period of restraint in durance vile suffered by one Thomas Barcus in consequence of conduct riotous, unseemly, and in general prejudicial to the public peace of the New Bedford waterfront at half-past four in the morning, proved in the upshot far more brief than had been fondly hoped, not only by his just judge, but, singularly enough, by the misdeedman himself.

Taking everything gravely into consideration, including a person anything but prepossessing, the judge reckoned that, in default of a fine of one hundred dollars, a ten-day layup for repairs and repentance was not too much to mete out to the prisoner at the bar.

He was sentenced at 10 a. m. and it was little short of 10 p. m. when his post-prandial repose was disturbed by the rattle of a key in the lock of the door to his cell.

Sitting up, Mr. Barcus rubbed his eyes and combed his hair with his fingers.

"What did I tell you?" he observed resignedly. "It begins again already."

Conducted with every evidence of disesteem on the part of his jailers to the office of the warden, he was acquainted with the fact that his fine had been paid by no one less than the judge himself: then present in portly and solicitous person.

"If only you had told me you were a friend of Mr. Digby's," the judge hastened to say as soon as the two were ensconced in the privacy of the judicial limousine, "I would have known better how to guide myself in this unfortunate affair."

"And if you will be good enough to indicate how else I may serve you?"

"Digby didn't offer any suggestions in his wire, I gather?"

"One moment: I have it here."

"Naturally I'd like a bath and a change of clothes," Barcus pursued while the judicial breast-pocket was being explored; "and I could do with transportation to New York by the first train out of this God-forsaken hole, and—"

"This is what Mr. Digby says," the judge interrupted, laboriously deciphering the message by the light of a match: "Please see to immediate release of one Thomas Barcus, probably in jail in your jurisdiction for rioting on waterfront this morning. Pay his fine and instruct him to report to me in New York at earliest feasible hour. Give him all the money he wants and look to me for remuneration—"

"Eh?" Barcus interrupted, sitting up smartly; "what's that last again?"

Patience the judge repeated the sentence from the message.

"Thanks. Please don't read farther. You might come to something that would spoil it. It's almost too beautiful as it stands," Barcus observed. "Law owes me five thousand or so liquidated damages—but I'll be reasonable. Frisk this burg for a fifth of that sum before train time—and I promise to ask nothing more!"

His private comment was: "I've suspected that this was a fairy-tale all along. Now I know it is!"

And this phase of incredulity persisted in coloring the complexion of his mind until the moment, some hours later, when the train connecting

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

at Providence with the Midnight Express for New York pulled out of New Bedford bearing a transformed Barcus—almost impenetrably disguised in a bath, a shave and a haircut, an outfit of clothing originally tailored for a gentleman of discriminating taste, but no whit less disguised in the sense of affluence that goes with the possession of one thousand dollars in cash.

Not until a sound night's sleep had topped off the beginning of his rest in jail did Barcus come down to earth.

He demonstrated his return to common sense by making a round breakfast in Grand Central station before looking up the residence of Digby in the telephone directory.

The information he gathered from the voice that answered the name of Mr. Digby over the telephone shook only momentarily Barcus' innate conviction that intimate acquaintance with battle, murder and sudden death was the inevitable reward of association with this friend of his heart.

"Alan being married to Rose Trine in Jersey City at this very minute!" he breathed skeptically as he emerged from the booth memorizing the address of the alleged officiating clergyman. "I don't believe it; it's too sudden."

Forthwith he engaged a taxicab to convey him to Jersey City, at top speed, for an exorbitant reward.

And when, from the forward deck of a ferryboat, he beheld a dense volume of smoke advertising a conflagration on the Jersey shore, not far from the waterfront, he shook a moodily sagacious head.

"If Alan isn't mixed up in that, somehow," he declared, "he's missing a bet for once—and I'm a sorry failure as a prophet of woe and disaster!"

There was as much intuitive apprehension as humor responsible for this remark; witness the fact that, on landing, he risked the delay required to turn aside and have a look at the fire.

It proved to be situated in the heart of a squalid slum—a wretched tenement of the poorest class, whose roof had already fallen in and whose walls were momentarily threatening to go by the time Barcus arrived on the scene.

At a considerable distance from him a small disturbance had broken out—a clamor of protesting voices lifting about the rumor of the mob—as a number of men, case-hardened roughs one and all, began to force their way in a V-shaped wedge through the throng, making toward its very heart, the point on the fire-lines nearest the burning building.

What this meant, Mr. Barcus had not the slightest idea. But his attention was first distracted by the maneuver, then fixed by the face of a man who was following in the hollow of the V—an evil white face that seemed somewhat vaguely familiar, somehow reminiscent of something strange that had happened in the history of Mr. Barcus.

At the same time, at the point where the V had paused, a wild uproar lifted up and, coincidentally, a wilder confusion became noticeable. A cry was audible—"Firebug! Lynch him! Lynch him! Lynch the firebug!"—and at this the mob turned as one man and streamed away in pursuit of an invisible quarry, who chose to attempt his escape by a route directly opposite to that which would have led him within view of Mr. Barcus.

Startled, and of a sudden persuaded that there might have been more in his "hunch" than was sanely to be credited, Barcus started up and was on the point of stepping out of his cab, if with a rather aimless purpose, when he was stayed by sight of that evil white face returning the way it had come—still in the hollow of the flying V, which now made faster progress, thanks to the disorganization of the mob by the chase of the alleged incendiary the white face was not alone. There was someone with him—someone whose head was bent and face concealed, but who seemed to be feminine.

And so, Barcus argued, why might it not be Rose Trine, suffering new persecution at the hands of her unnatural father's creatures?

He was too far away to make sure and attempt any interference; but he pointed White Face out to his chauffeur as the V reached a touring car on the edge of the mob and the woman was lifted in (unresisting and apparently in a dead faint), and when the touring car swung round and picked up its heels, the taxicab of Mr. Barcus trailed it as unostentatiously as if it was a pertinacious shadow.

Ten minutes later, from the rear deck of a ferryboat in midstream—a boat bearing back to New York not only the touring car of White Face, but the cab of Mr. Barcus—the latter gentleman formed one of a small but interested audience witnessing an incident of uncommon character.

He saw a young man, hatless, coatless, almost shirtless, tear down to the edge of one of the Jersey wharves, his heels snapped at by a ravening rabble, jump aboard a square-rigged vessel which lay moored there, and execute a maneuver of despair by climbing up the rigging in a hopeless attempt to escape his persecutors. They were too many for him, and what was worse they were headed by a squad of police apparently as grimly bent on compassing the destruction of their quarry as was the mob.

And they swarmed up the rigging after him without a moment's hesitation.

Hotly pressed, the fugitive climbed higher and still higher, until at length he gained the topmost yard; with three policemen not half a dozen feet below him and popping away for dear life, if happily with the notoriously poor marksmanship of policemen generally.

None the less, there was no telling when some accident might wing a bullet into the young man; and it was evident that he so decided.

For, inching out to the end of the yard, he waved his hand toward his persecutors with a gesture of light-hearted derision that unmistakably identified him as Alan Law to Mr. Barcus, and forthwith dropped to the water, feet foremost.

Alan later took the water neatly, came up uninjured and clearheaded, and without an instant's hesitation struck away toward the middle of the Hudson.

As this happened the police ran to the stern of the square-rigger, unmoored a dory that was riding there, and threw themselves into it.

During the (to Barcus, at least) breathless suspense of that chase, the ferryboat drew stolidly farther and still farther away from the scene. Barcus could not tell whether, as it seemed, the police-laden dory was really overhauling Alan, or whether the illusion of perspective deceived him.

At all events, it seemed a frightfully near thing when the interruption befell which alone could have saved Alan.

Out of the very sky dropped a hydroaeroplane, cutting the water with a long, graceful curve that brought it, almost at a standstill, directly to the head of the swimmer, and at the same time forced the police boat to sheer widely off in order to escape collision.

Immediately the swimmer caught the pontoon of the hydroaeroplane, pulled himself up out of the water, and clambered to the seat beside the aviator.

Before he was fairly seated the plane was swinging back into its fastest pace.

With the ease of a wild goose it left the water, mounted the long grade of an air lane, described a wide circle above the bluffs of Weehawken, and swept away southward.

In that quarter it was presently lost to the sight of Mr. Barcus, engulfed in light folds of haze that were creeping in from seawards to dim and tarnish the pristine brilliance of that day.

CHAPTER XXX.

Birdman.

About eight o'clock in the evening of the same day a motorcar deposited at the Hotel Monolith a gentleman whose weather-beaten and oil-stained motoring-cap and duster covered little clothing more than shirt and trousers and assorted oddly in the eyes of the desk-clerk with the rather meticulously turned-out guest known to him as Mr. Arthur Lawrence and to the management of the hotel as Mr. Alan Law incognito.

Eventually persuaded, the clerk yielded up the key to Mr. Lawrence's suite of rooms, together with two notes superscribed with the same nom de guerre.

Alan's impatience was so great that he could hardly wait to examine these communications until he was quit of the public eye.

The first proved to be a characteristic communication:

"Dear Ulysses—Thanks for the jail delivery. I got in this morning just in time to motor over to Jersey in hopes of seeing your finish as a bachelor; instead, I was favored by being made an involuntary witness to your spectacular ascent, following your almost equally spectacular high-dive.

"But to business: my time is limited; in half an hour more I am to double in black-face for the purposes of the author of this melodramatic farce which you, no doubt, call the history of your grande passion.

"I mean to say—well, several things, to-wit: When I saw you snatched out of the North river I was engaged in trailing a pale-faced villain in a motorcar concerning whom you probably know far more than I; he on his part was busy being a bold, bad kidnaper; Rose was in his power, as we say in such cases. His intentions, however, were nothing more blameworthy than to return her to the arms of her doting parent. I know, because I sleuthed after 'em, even to the house of Seneca Trine. Later I sleuthed some more, following a furtive young man from the house of Trine to the office of the general manager of the New York Central, where he made arrangements for a special to convey the said Trine and retinue to Chicago and points West. It leaves at three this afternoon. I was unable to ascertain whether or not Rose is to participate in this heira, but I know I shall. On the off-chance of being useful, I have bribed the train crew to let me impersonate the porter. So, should you be moved to follow and succeed in catching up with us, and observe anybody who looks rather off-color in the party—don't shoot; the said party will be me.

"Yours for the quiet life,

"TOM BARCUS."

The second note yielded a communication written on notepaper of the simplest elegance in a woman's hand—a hurried scrawl:

"They are taking me West by special train—I don't know where or why. A servant has promised to see that this reaches you. Save me!"

Over this Alan wrinkled an incredulous nose. The hand was the hand of Rose, but the phraseology was not in her spirit. He examined it more closely and thought to detect beneath its semblance of haste a deliberate and carefully guided pen. He picked up the envelope to compare the handwriting of the address with that of the enclosure—and shook out a Trey of hearts.

This last was covered, as to its face, with a plainly-written message.

"With the compliments of Seneca Trine to Alan Law. We are due in Chicago at eleven tomorrow morning and leave immediately for the Pacific coast via Santa Fe route."

Comparison between this and the message purporting to be from Rose distilled the conviction that the same hand was responsible for both.

Alan shrugged. So he was to be lured away from New York and Rose by this transparent trick, was he? No fear!

He glanced at his watch, finding the hour far too early to attempt what he had in mind.

With plenty of time on his hands, he gave the matter serious consideration and concluded to take no chances: it was just possible that Trine had taken Rose with him on his western trip, after all. In such case the only possible way of overtaking the special would be by air line.

Promptly Alan called up the aviation fields at Hempstead Plains and got into communication with a gentleman answering to the surname of Coast; the same birdman who had come to Alan's rescue with his hydroaeroplane.

Their arrangements were quickly consummated, Coast agreeing to wait for Alan with his biplane in Van Cortlandt park from midnight till daybreak, prepared if need be to undertake a transcontinental flight.

Thereafter Mr. Law proceeded to rehabilitate himself in decent clothing and his own esteem; after bathing, he dined alone in his rooms, from a tray; after dining he slept soundly for three hours—and may be thought to have earned at least that much rest through having been for four hours a passenger in a hydroaeroplane lost in fogs that wrapped Long Island and all the adjacent territory in an impenetrable shroud.

and expression and aroused the crowd to even greater expressions of appreciation. Mr. Miller hesitated about going back but the applause was insistent. He sang "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," another of the fine old songs that mingle with the memories of an earlier day. Mrs. Jess Pugh accompanied Mr. Miller on the piano.

"When You and I Were Young Maggie," so sweetly sung by Mrs. Carl F. Beher, added to the charm of the program of old music. It is one of the melodies which many cherish the memory of so well and the expressive note of Mrs. Beher's rendition only added to the intrinsic merit of the song. Mrs. Dean was her accompanist.

Miss Frances Frazee, who has just returned home, gave a reading, a pathetic, little story that caused many a person to brush away a tear that forced its way to the surface and comment favorably in husky voice. The tale was so exquisitely told that there had to be another and Miss Frazee responded with a humorous selection in which she imitated the inquisitive child with fine grace.

Dr. Hale Pearsey sang "Mother Machree" in beautiful tenor voice. His solo emphasized the beauty of the old songs, the kind that give a peculiar pleasure that no other music can do. Dr. Pearsey was called back. James E. Watson remarked it was a hard "pull" but that the dentist was finally brought back and he responded with an old familiar air that was as pleasing as the first. Miss Norma Smith was his accompanist.

Mrs. Beher and Miss Scott sang that most charming of old-time melodies, "Sweet Genevieve." There was a storm of applause and they could not deny another selection. They then sang "Whispering Hope," one of the renowned old melodies that the rendition of Miss Scott and Mrs. Beher made even more beautiful. Mrs. Dean accompanied them on the piano.

Jess Pugh was given a most cordial reception when he stepped upon the stage. He sang "Bonnie Loch Lomond" with characteristic expressiveness. Miss Martha Hogsett, who was the piano accompanist, sang with him on the chorus which added greatly to the beauty of the old Scotch air. Storms of applause burst forth when the last note had been sounded and Mr. Pugh did not even leave the stage but graciously answered the applause with a modern parody which related a tale of woe about a honeymoon by automobile! The description of the travels of a much-made-fun-of little automobile that always gets there were so funny, especially with Jess Pugh's own way of telling it by song, that it was impossible for him to leave the stage because the crowd was not in the mood to let him go yet. As a third number he sang, "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary," a song that is much in vogue just now on the battlefields of Europe and is sung by the English soldiers. The tune had a "catchy" air and the musicians who gave the program took up the chorus after each verse and added to the popularity of the number.

The program was most appropriately closed with B. F. Miller's imitable rendition of "Silver Threads Among the Gold," the most charming of all of the melodious old songs. Mr. Miller, as musicians without exception agree, sings it in a way that brings forth the true meaning of the words and makes the fine melody one that rings in one's ears long after it has been sung.

LONDON PAPERS MAKE COMMENT

Editors Take Various Views of VonWiegand's Exclusive Interview With German Prince.

IMAGINE HE IS A GERMAN

They Say it is Interesting as Showing Effort to Win Public Opinion in United States

(By United Press.)

London, Dec. 3.—All London papers with the exception of the Telegraph and the Post, as well as the leading provincial papers yesterday published the interview of Karl H. Von Wiegand United Press staff correspondent with the German crown prince. The interview is carried under the United Press copyright line, full credit being given.

The editorial expressions of the various papers are typical war-time comments. Evidently not knowing that VonWiegand's home is in San Francisco and that his parents reside in Iowa, where he was reared, a majority make sarcastic references to the correspondent's German name.

The Birmingham Post, in a lengthy, ironical editorial says, however:

"We are almost tempted in our admiration of Von Wiegand's performance to say we should like to know him despite the forbidding sound of his name.

"Von Wiegand achieved what his American press comrades will describe as a bully scoop," the Post continues. "He captured a crown prince. The crown prince churned him out live copy."

"Moreover Von Wiegand must be of generous disposition as he might have kept the interview exclusive for America."

Commenting on the reference to the strategic ability of the heir to the German throne, the Post says:

"The crown prince handled the strategic problem of facing a newspaper interviewer with conspicuous ability."

The Express heads Von Wiegand's story:

"An interview with the German crown prince."

Editorially the Express (Ralph Blumenfeld editor) characterizes the interview as Germany's latest attempt to influence American opinion. Von Wiegand is termed "an amiable and obedient journalist" and the editorial adds:

"We wonder what would have happened to the loyal Von Wiegand if he had interpolated something more like the truth in the interview."

The Daily Mirror headline is:

"Crown Prince Interviewed just before battle, fearlessly asks to be told what Americans think of him."

The Daily Sketch, in running comments, with the story says:

"The crown prince bewitched the correspondent by his affability. Undoubtedly he had good reason to favor the American. Here are some of Von Wiegand's impressions after the crown prince had hypnotized him."

"The statement is obviously German propaganda," says the Daily Mail.

The Standard states: "Neither the hypocritical declarations of the crown prince nor the partisan comments of the German-American correspondent cause us to revise our opinions of the war or the German imperial family."

"The remarks Von Wiegand was privileged to hear, apparently greatly to his own dazzled admiration, merely illustrate the German official view. The statement that there has never been a war party in Germany is a wanton falsehood," says the News and Leader.

The Manchester Guardian stated: "The interview is interesting as showing the German government's efforts to win public opinion in the United States. The motive is obvious throughout."

The Evening Standard jeers at Von Wiegand's impressions of the crown prince.

"There is nothing as complete as the differences between the Crown Prince of our previous acquaintance and the man who now steps forth, equipped by the pen of a German-American journalist to conquer a new world." It's editorial declares, "The crown prince missed his vocation. He was intended for a German press agent."

IN CONNERSVILLE JAIL FOR 15 DAYS

John Conway Forgot Car Made One More Stop and Threw Bottle to Pavement.

WAS FINED FIVE DOLLARS

John Conway, 19, of Rushville, came over to this city Tuesday night and while here enjoyed himself in divers ways, says the Connersville Examiner. John, after he had seen as much of the town as he thought was good for him, got hold of some of the liquid cheer which is dispensed about town, with the result that he became overwhelmed with importance. At eleven o'clock when the last car left for his home town John was one of the last to get aboard, and he was also as near the rear end of the car as he could get and be safe. He also carried with him some bottled goods which he was taking home, and in his attempt to get aboard the car he dropped a bottle on the pavement. A policeman who was passing saw the incident and invited John to pick up the bottle. He did so and when the car started to leave he politely told the policeman to beat it, and threw a bottle on the pavement, which broke into a thousand pieces. He did not know that the car stopped at the Big Four crossing and when it did stop the policeman was on hand, and Conway was arrested and placed in jail. This afternoon he was arraigned before the mayor and fined $5 and costs. He will board it out in the county jail.

CHRISTMAS NOT VERY FAR AWAY

Even Now the Peculiar Feeling is in the Air and Merchants are Preparing for Rush

BUT RUSH CAN BE AVOIDED

Suggestion is Offered That Shoppers Prepare in Advance List of Those to be Remembered

Already the Christmas feeling is in the air even though the weather is spring-like. But one can not but feel it with the holiday of all holidays only twenty-two days in the offing.

It may not be possible just to feel it exactly, but there is a Christmas touch being lent to everything in the stores downtown. The windows already are suggestive of the Yuletide. The merchants are as busy as bees now getting their Christmas stocks arranged attractively.

In spite of the general publicity that is given the "Shop Early" advice there is always a rush during the few days preceding Christmas, advocating the slogan again this year. The advantage to the shopper who makes his selections before the stores are crowded are apparent. The lines of merchandise are unbroken and the customer has the advantage of a complete stock from which to purchase his gifts. Shopping early is also a great benefit to the merchants and their clerks who after a hard week's work, are too weary and exhausted to enjoy the annual holiday as they could if the shopping was steady for several weeks before.

There is not a dealer in Rushville but who wants to give all the attention possible to his customers, yet this is impossible if shopping for the holidays is delayed until a day or so before Christmas. There are then too many people wanting to buy and merchants have to look after all of them if possible. As a rule the holiday crowds are good natured and appreciate the conditions under which they are making selections and try to economize time wherever possible. But how much easier it would be for them if they could make their purchases two or even three weeks in advance. Then they could have every attention the clerks could give them and would avoid that rush which always comes during holiday week.

Nearly everybody knows in a general way how many people they want to remember and they could easily make out a list and opposite the names jot down several suggestions which come to their mind. Then they could take this list and after inspecting the local stores they would probably find other presents that would be more serviceable or appropriate. As they make their purchases they could check off the names and in this way the ordeal of Christmas shopping would become a real pleasure. The old method of buying anything that they can at the last moment takes all the joy and pleasure out of Christmas buying and it becomes a task which is performed in a "have to" manner. By doing this they could have plenty of time to tie up each package in an attractive box.

Every want can be supplied and if any particular gift is desired the dealer will be glad to accommodate his customer and send for it. In a few days the display windows will be filled with holiday suggestions. The dry goods, clothing, jewelry, and in fact, dealers in all lines, have bought goods which will make the most appropriate present. There is no denial of the fact that goods can be purchased more reasonably here than in the larger cities and the lines are just as complete. The holiday showings this year surpass those that have ever been seen here.

Jewelers are especially anxious that selections be made early. This is important in this line of business as many of the articles must be engraved which requires time. If the gifts are selected now the engravers will have time to do the work carefully while if the purchase is delayed until the last week there may be so many orders in advance that it will be impossible to fill all of them until after Christmas.

PLAN FOR ANOTHER STATE CAMPAIGN

Ohio Suffragists Active and Intend to Carry Forward Work Started This Year

CONVENTION HELD TODAY

(By United Press.)

Columbus, O., Dec. 3.—Plans for another state wide suffrage campaign in Ohio next year were expected to be put forward at the convention of the Ohio Woman Suffrage Association here today.

Prominent suffragists see in the tremendous suffrage gains, as shown by the vote on the question at the polls a month ago indications that the attitude of Ohio voters on the question is slowly swinging in their favor.

Work of securing signatures to suffrage initiative petitions as well as plans for the state campaign will be begun at once.
